

About Us

AITD was founded in 1971 as a not-for-profit professional association owned by its members. Initially established to facilitate networking among individuals with an interest in training and development, over the past four decades AITD has established itself in the learning and development profession and expanded its reach attracting members across Australia and the Asia-Pacific region.

Our Purpose

We are a membership organisation which fosters excellence in individual and organisational learning.

We achieve our purpose through:

- Developing our members
- Facilitating networking and information exchange
- Advocating on behalf of our members
- Defining practice standards and providing accreditation

Our Members

Our members include trainers, educators, consultants, coaches, course coordinators, mentors, instructors, teachers, facilitators, academics, human resources and organisational development professionals, instructional designers, assessors and undergraduate and graduate students.

Membership provides professional connectedness and is a means of gaining information, resources, training, and networks to support individuals at all stages of their career.

Corporate Membership Benefits

Corporate membership saves you at least 20% off the cost of individual membership. Corporate membership is structured over four tiers, with each level offering you more value for lower per member price. If you have a large training, learning and development team it may be more cost effective to join on a higher tier.

AITD corporate membership is suited to organisations with a minimum of five AITD members. Unlike individual membership, the corporate membership remains with the company and can be transferred to other staff should current members leave the organisation. Corporate members receive a significant discount on membership fees.

AITD corporate membership will help your company to:

- ✓ Demonstrate commitment to excellence, innovation and professional integrity for training, learning and development
- ✓ Ensure your training, learning and development staff are kept up to date with industry trends and knowledge.
- ✓ Attract and retain talented employees by recognising and supporting their professional development.
