

THIS CHANGES EVERYTHING

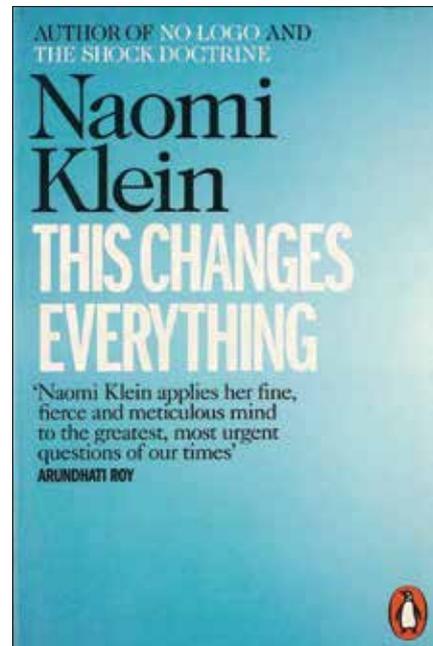

by Naomi Klein

This Changes Everything is the third book by award-winning journalist, author and activist Naomi Klein. If you care about climate change, you must read this book about the impact of capitalism on the environment. You will be sure to learn a lot. Naomi believes we can seize the crisis of climate change to transform our failed economic system into something radically better.

In November Naomi received the Sydney Peace Prize “For exposing the structural causes and responsibility for the climate crisis, for inspiring us to stand up locally, nationally and internationally to demand a new agenda for sharing the planet that respects human rights and equality, and for reminding us of the power of authentic democracy to achieve transformative change and justice.”

If you are looking for some thought provoking reading I suggest you get yourself a copy of This Changes Everything, No Logo or The Shock Doctrine.

Reviewed by Jo Loudon

THE AGE OF AFFECT

by Matt Jackson

In this book Jackson explores the emotional impact that business can have on us and those that we interact with. Jackson works in both art and commerce and shows in this book what these two industries, often seen as having conflicting values, can learn from each other. Using thought-provoking poems and stories (his own and those of other business leaders), the book explores various themes including decision making, networking, authentic leadership and goal setting. This is an inspiring read for anyone interested in exploring the increasing importance of affect in business.

Reviewed by Liz Seskus

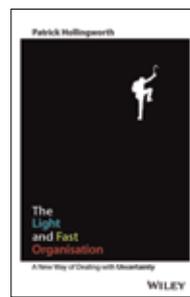

THE INNOVATION RACE

by Andrew Grant and Gaia Grant

The Innovation Race explores the current state of innovation and why some countries and companies excel. It is a guide on how to create a thriving innovation culture for long term business success. The book helps readers to understand how to: identify the best path for innovation and improved results; engage and motivate employees toward innovative action; execute innovation strategies and implement a cultural shift. Andrew and Gaia Grant explain how to navigate the challenges that can either frustrate or fuel innovation, and how leaders can develop a sustainable purpose-driven innovation culture.

THE LIGHT AND FAST ORGANISATION

by Patrick Hollingworth

In 2008, mountaineer Ueli Steck made history by climbing the North Face of the Eiger, a storm-prone mountain in Switzerland, in a record time. Steck's approach was simple: he climbed light and he climbed fast. Patrick Hollingworth, mountaineer and leadership specialist provides practical advice and introduces a unique approach to overcoming business challenges. Readers will learn how to: prepare for an uncertain future; understand change and unearth opportunities; embrace uncertainty and complexity as potential opportunities; create an agile and innovative organisation and get comfortable with uncertainty and discomfort, to achieve more, faster.

Members are encouraged to contact editor@aitd.com.au if you would like to review a book.